What can you invent? What problem can you solve? Ron Klein is a true problem solver to the core. He holds the patent for the credit card magnetic strip that we all use on a daily basis, he invented the electronic version of the MLS - Multi Sales Listing that is used thousands of times daily, he has inventions used daily in Banks and the New York Stock Exchange. Ron's latest patent is for a device that enables a visually impaired person the ability to ID an item in physical range. It utilizes a phone App & special labels. In years past he has taken time to spend with our next generation
