December 15th 2010: Should you outsource your Enterprise Mobility?

Mobile devices of every sort are proliferating and becoming more and more like computers. In parallel, Internet applications, cloud computing, and the need for 24/7 on demand access with authentication and security are increasing the headaches of managing it all. Does it make sense to outsource, or is it better to keep it all in the enterprise? How does an IT leader decide which option to choose, and what are the pitfalls and challenges of either choice?
